About me

I am so rational, trustworthy, farsighted, sociable, hardworking and optimistic person. I am a self-motivated to work who loves research and science. I am very curious and always looking for new learning opportunities. I am a researcher and research reviewer. I can easily adapt any new circumstance or the social movement, motivated enough to know more about my profession, all other health related issues and associated extra health issues. I believe that communication is the key in every setting and therefore I am always clear on what I need and what I can deliver.
